ESTABLISHED 1902 GETTYSBURG, PA., TUESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 19, 1930. PRICE THREE CENTS

THREE FEDERAL EMPLOYES ARE TO BE RETIRED

William C. Storrick, Authority On 3-Day Battle, Is One.

MESSENGER IS ALSO ON LIST

Three employes of the Gettysburg national military park organization will retire shortly, Col. E. E. Davis, superintendent, announced today.

One of the trio, Harry Clay, messenger at the superintendent's office, is the oldest and has been in service longer than either of the others, who are William C. Storrick, forester and superintendent of battlefield guides, and Harvey M. Starner, a laborer.

Mr. Clay and Mr. Starner will retire August 30, while Mr. Storrick will continue until September 30.

Employed 21 Years

Mr. Storrick has been in federal employ for twenty-one years, beginning as caretaker at the East Cavalry field where he was stationed for four years.

While the late Col. J. P. Nicholson was superintendent of the park Mr. Storrick was brought into the office and placed in charge of the farms on the battlefield, and later he was made superintendent of battlefield guides.

Mr. Storrick, who will be 74 on his next birthday, had already been granted an extension of four years, and efforts were made to have his time extended again, but the war department disapproved.

After Mr. Storrick was made superintendent of guides in 1917, and was held responsible for the licensing of guides through examinations, he made a thorough study of the battlefield, and is able to deliver a comprehensive lecture on the movement of troops using only the two large relief maps in the national park office on the second floor of the postoffice building.

Wealth of Knowledge

Although Mr. Storrick disclaims to be an authority on the battle of Gettysburg, he has a wealth of knowledge about the fighting here gleaned from study and personal acquaintance with commanders and soldiers who fought on both sides. Mr. Storrick's lectures on the battle have been given for high officials of the American and foreign governments. Since beginning his study of the battlefield, Mr. Storrick has collected a fair-sized library of works pertaining to the Civil War, most of which are at the superintendent's office.

Since being placed in charge of the eighteen battlefield farms, Mr. Storrick has transacted all the business in connection with the leasing of these tracts, and has been of invaluable assistance to the various superintendents in that respect.

Messenger 37 Years

Mr. Clay, who is 85, has been working for the park organization since its establishment thirty-seven years ago. On three different occasions, his time has been extended for a total of six years.

Besides being messenger at the park office, Mr. Clay is in charge of all incoming and out-going mail and all supplies used in the various offices.

For thirty-nine years, Mr. Clay was sexton at Prince of Peace Episcopal church here, quitting that position a year ago.

Mr. Starner has been employed as a laborer on the park for nine years. He is 69 years old.

No successors to any of the three men retiring have been appointed.

Former New Oxford Pastor Is Granted Partial Decree

The Rev. Peter E. Heimer, Reformed church minister of Thurmont, and formerly of New Oxford, was granted a partial divorce in a decision handed down in circuit court here Monday, in which his wife was refused alimony after a spirited fight lasting nearly a year.

The decision was handed down by Chief Judge Hammond Urner and Associate Judge John S. Newman, who heard testimony in the case. There were several adjourned hearings, which were marked by accusations of cruelty by Mrs. Heimer and cross allegations by the minister that his wife had attempted to thwart his clerical work and refused an accounting of joint funds.

Suit Filed Year Ago

Mrs. Heimer started the action in September, 1929, when she filed an action asking for alimony and separate maintenance.

The minister filed an answer in October and in April, 1930, filed a cross bill asking absolute divorce.

The woman's plea was denied, in the language of the decision, because "there is evidence of exaggeration in the plaintiff's description of her husband's treatment of her during the period of years to which her testimony refers. It is difficult to believe that a wife could so long endure such constant harshness."

The decision referred to the testimony which Mrs. Heimer gave when she told a story of extreme cruelty on the part of her husband throughout their married life.

She charged he had refused to allow her to pursue a career of music except when it fostered his own ends, and that he had practiced other methods of cruel treatment. The court also refused to order a settlement of financial dispute involved in the case.

The partial divorce was granted to the minister on the grounds that his wife had abandoned him while he was on a vacation, refusing to return.

The minister, who had charge of four parishes in Frederick county, resigned his position when the court action was started by his wife, but continued to serve the district at weddings and funerals and occasionally occupied the pulpit.

Pinchot's Counsel Admits Court Was Outside Rights

Philadelphia, Aug. 19 (AP)—Deputy Attorney William A Schnader, chief counsel for Gifford Pinchot, admitted in the state supreme court today that the judges of Luzerne county had no more authority for authorizing the perforation of paper ballots than the "aldermen of the wards."

Mr. Schnader agreed with a pronouncement to this effect by Judge Frazer of Pittsburgh, presiding in the high court chamber, where arguments were heard today on the petition of Francis Shunk Brown to throw 60,000 Luzerne county ballots.

The specific case before the case is the second division of the eighth ward of Wilkes Barre, with a second petition affecting 373 districts of the county where paper ballots were used in the event the court finds their use in the division was illegal.

Numbers were stamped on the ballots by order of the county court to prevent fraud. As Mr. Pinchot carried the state by 20,000 and the county by 26,000, the invalidation of the Luzerne county ballots would give the gubernatorial nomination to Mr. Brown by 6,000.

The courtroom was crowded to capacity when former Attorney General John Hampton Barnes began his argument for the rejection of the county's vote.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN SEPT. 8TH IN GETTYSBURG

New Improvements Made In High And Lincoln Buildings.

LOCKERS ADDED TO GYMNASIUM

Gettysburg's public schools, grade and high, will open for the 1930-31 term, Monday morning, September 8th, according to Professor Lloyd C. Keefauver, supervising principal. The opening will follow Institute Week, which opens September 2.

Some improvements have been made to the high school and the Lincoln building. At the high school the boys' locker room has been enlarged. An addition has been built on the rear of the present structure and four new showers installed. This will provide six showers for the high school boys and a larger and dry locker room. Heretofore the locker rooms was altogether too small to accommodate the boys and the two showers were found to fall far short of the high school needs. The new locker room and showers will relieve the crowded conditions considerably.

New Storage Rooms

A storage room to store stage scenery and sets has also been built to the left of the auditorium stage. Since the opening of the new high school all stage equipment was stored in the corridors and other places, because of the lack of room. With the new scenery room all stage equipment will be stored in one room.

At the Lincoln building two new regulation class rooms and a new play room have been built. This was done by removing the former old office room and remodeling an old class room. The play room has been changed to the rear of the two new class rooms. This improvement also relieves the crowded and congested condition experienced at the Lincoln building during the past few years. The additional room was made necessary by the increased enrollment in the seventh and eighth grades.

New spout drains have also been built at the Lincoln building.

She was the widow of Samuel Null, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ohler, on Saturday. She was aged 84 years. Mrs. Null had been ill for a week with dysentery.

She was the daughter of the late Samuel and Annamary Fair. Her husband preceded her in death 14 years ago. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. Ohler, with whom she made her home; Mrs. J. T. Wantz, Taneytown; Mrs. David B. Reifsnider, Keymar; Mrs. Walter C. Brower, near Taneytown; Harold L. Null, Waynesboro; 17 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren; one brother, Samuel J. Arrest County Man on Charge of Selling Beer To Youth Before Crash

Raid On Home Of J. J. Miller, Mt. Pleasant Township, Fails To Reveal Contraband But Lewis Moore Identifies Him As Vendor.

INQUEST IN THOMPSON DEATH SET AT SCENE OF TRAGEDY

Following out a lead obtained in connection with their investigation into the death of Harry C. Thompson, 45, of Gettysburg R. 5, state and local police on Monday evening arrested J. J. "Bummie" Miller, Mt. Pleasant township, on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer on a charge of the illegal sale of intoxicating liquor, Miller posted $1,000 for his appearance at a preliminary hearing fore Justice Shealer next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Arrested by Corporal M. O. Harnois, of the state police; Corporal R. G. Schwartz, of the state highway motor patrol, and Constable George Aughinbaugh, Miller denied that he sold beer to Lewis E. Moore, 20, of New Oxford, and Roy Smith, of Mt. Misery, last Saturday night, several hours before Thompson was run down and instantly killed by a hit-and-run driver on the Lincoln highway, one mile west of New Oxford.

Search of the Miller premises failed to reveal any beer or liquor, so the officers took the man before Smith and Moore, both of whom identified him as the man from whom they had purchased beer last Saturday evening. The authorities said they had the affidavits of five persons to the effect that they either purchased beer at the Miller home or saw beer sold there.

Admits Hitting Object

Moore has already admitted, police say, that his car struck an object on the Lincoln Highway early Sunday morning, while he and Smith were returning to New Oxford from the Miller home, between Gulden's station and Bonneauville. Moore further stated, according to officers, that he did not stop after the accident.

Thompson was dead five or six hours before his body was discovered twelve feet off the highway by two Pittsburgh tourists, Sunday morning, thereby fixing the time of his death between 12:30 and 1 o'clock, Sunday morning. Moore told the authorities his car struck an unknown object about 1 o'clock, Sunday morning.

Moore is at liberty under $1,500 bail on charges of involuntary manslaughter and failing to stop and render assistance after an accident. He will be given a hearing on the latter charge before Justice of the Peace Shealer next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

An inquest into Thompson's death and the victim's funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Inquest Wednesday

Dr. E. A. Miller, Adams county coroner, today announced the jurors who will hear testimony at the scene of the accident, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The jurors are Vernon Rice, C. B. Little and Charles Diehl, Mt. Pleasant township, and Horace Bender, John Thorn and C. R. Wolff, Gettysburg.

Funeral services for the victim will be held from the Bender funeral home, Carlisle street at 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. B. F. Lightner, Gettysburg, officiating. Interment will be at Pfoutz's church cemetery.

Thompson, who worked for a garbage collector in York, is survived by three children, who reside with his mother, Mrs. Alice Seibert, Gettysburg R. 5, two sisters, Mrs. Bessie Wagaman, Hanover R. 3, and Mrs. Stella Ferner, Doylestown, and one brother, Charles Thompson, Gettysburg R. 5.

N. Y. IN THROES OF EGG WAR

Truck Tires Punctured By Rival Faction As New System Goes In.

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—State officials investigating rising food prices were told Monday that because the "regular set-up" in the egg market was threatened when the Utah Poultry Producers' association began selling to retailers, thus passing the jobber's profit along to the consumer, the Utah association has been picketed and boycotted.

Benjamin Brown, director of markets for the Utah association, testified that after he contracted with the Jewish Grocers' association to furnish a carload of Utah eggs a day, representatives of the jobbers' association warned him he was spoiling the "regular set-up" and jobbers' truckmen began picketing his place of business.

This picketing, it was said, took the form of threatening other truckmen who wanted to deal with the Utah association, and one truckman, Anthony Protano, told of his tires being punctured with an ice pick while he was getting a load of Utah eggs.

"A man came up to me," he testified, "and asked: 'Where did you get your eggs?' I told him from the Utah Poultry company, and he said: 'That's why you got your tires punctured.' So I cancelled orders for 130 dozen Utah eggs, though there is a demand for them and I would like to be able to get them."

Denies Reports His Wife Will Go In Sub

Philadelphia, Aug. 19 (AP)—Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins denied reports Monday that Lady Wilkins, who was Suzanne Bennett, of the musical comedy stage, would be a member of his crew when he sets off in a submarine to see what is under the Arctic ice.

The explorer came here from New York to inspect the little red submarine O-12 which is being remodeled at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

"This is going to be a trip de luxe," Sir Hubert said, "but the top of the world is hardly a fitting place for a woman. There will be eighteen men in our crew and the number will stop at that."

Jerusalem, Aug. 19 (AP).—The remains of ten cities, making possible a survey of Palestine culture in the 2,000 years before Christ up to Nebuchadnezzar, have been unearthed at Tel Beit Mirsim by the joint expedition of Xenia seminary, St. Louis, and the American School of Oriental research, Jerusalem.

Dr. Melvin G. Kyle, president of Xenia seminary, said many of the objects found permit chronological establishment of the period of Abraham, the Exodus and the occupation of Canaan.

COMB PARK FOR GIRL ATTACKER

1,000 Persons Join In Manhunt After Suspect Escapes.

Stony Point, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP)—A man-hunt in which approximately 1,000 persons with four bloodhounds were taking part Monday night combed the Bear Mountain park area in search of a man alleged to have attacked a 15-year-old girl earlier in the day in a girls' camp on Lake Cohasset.

The hunters included park police, state police and civilian posses under deputy sheriffs. They had assistance of 300 West Point plebes out for a hike and a detachment of marines. The cadets and marines are forbidden by United States regulations from taking part in any such hunt, except on government property, but they were ordered to keep watch for the fugitive as they went about their military duties. Several troops of Boy Scouts were assisting.

The man was captured early Monday by Captain Elmer Mandigo, of the park police, as he left the camp after the alleged attack. He escaped, however, after the captain took him to the park police station, where he was registered as William Horrner, 24, employed as a cook at a boys' camp across the lake. The police said he admitted stealing into the camp, seizing the girl and carrying her away, while stifling her screams with a hand over her mouth.

U. S. MAY TRY MINE BOMBERS

Eight Under Arrest In Airplane Attack On Mining Town.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 19 (AP).—A move on the part of the federal government to assume charge of prosecuting those involved in the Providence (Ky.) airplane bombing was made Monday by Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson. He ordered District Attorney Thomas J. Sparks to begin an investigation.

Sparks said he would ask the department of justice office at Cincinnati to assign a special investigator to the case. He called attention to a federal statute that forbids transportation of explosives from one state to another for unlawful purposes, providing a maximum punishment of $10,000 fine and ten years' imprisonment or both.

Undecided On Trial

Reports were received that Illinois authorities were undecided whether to try Paul Montgomery, Murphysboro aviator, who admitted piloting the plane, in federal or state courts. James Malone, another aviator, also is under arrest in Illinois, accused of introducing Montgomery to the men who planned the bombing.

Carroll Vaughn and Angus Merritt were arrested in Webster county Monday, bringing the arrests in the case to eight. Others charged are Essel Grant, Harvey Davis, James Harvey and Ewing Riley, all of Webster county.

Husband Threatened Before Sudden Death

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP)—Telephone calls which told her of the purported death of her husband were related Monday by Mrs. J. T. Joyce to a coroner's jury investigating the death of her husband, State Senator Joyce, found dead Saturday in his bed.

Joyce was to have appeared today before the Grand Jury to elaborate on his charges that armed squads of hoodlums toured his ward, the Forty-second, on the Gold Coast, during the primary election, terrorizing voters.

Mrs. Joyce testified her husband retired Friday night about midnight and awakened her Saturday morn-by his screams. She rushed to his bedroom, she said, but the Senator had died.

Fascists Lower List Of Dead In Quake

Rome, Aug. 19 (AP)—An order sheet of the Facist Party said Monday that the total dead in the earthquake of July 23 numbered only 1475, in contrast to the previous official total of 2142.

The statement said many persons had been found who previously had not answered rollcalls because they had fled to the hills.

It also condemned reports published abroad that the deaths ranged from 500 to 15,000, with millions homeless, and denied the government had hidden the truth to promote tourist business.

Tahiti Sinks Into Sea; 317 Are Safe

Wellington, N. Z., Aug. 19 (AP)—The British steamer Tahiti, which had been in distress three days, went down in the South Pacific Monday after her 317 occupants—passengers and crew—were safely aboard the American steamer Ventura.

The Ventura immediately headed for Pago Pago, the American naval base in Samoa, to discharge its island passengers.

After leaving Wellington for San Francisco, due there August 29, the Tahiti lost its starboard propeller and sprang a leak about 460 miles east of Rarotonga, Cook Islands. While the wireless crackled out calls for aid and ships in those waters raced to the position the large vessel drifted about sixty miles with a strong current before other ships came up.

The Penybryn, a Norwegian freighter, was the first to reach the disabled vessel, but passengers were not evacuated to it because of the limited accommodations, while no immediate danger threatened.

MISS DOIG IS 2ND IN DERBY

Follows Leader In Nip And Tuck Race For First Place.

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 19 (AP)—Continuing their nip and tuck race for the lead in the National Women's Air derby, Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, California, and Margery Doig, Danbury, Connecticut, finished the third lap of the Long Beach to Chicago flight here Monday separated by less than five minutes' elapsed time.

While Mrs. O'Donnell completed the lap, which began in Calexico, California, first, she was followed twenty seconds later by Miss Doig, who gained forty seconds during the flight. Mrs. O'Donnell's time from Calexico was 1 hour, 24 minutes. The distance is approximately 180 miles.

Half an hour after Mrs. O'Donnell arrived Jean La Rene, Kansas City, the third to arrive, set her plane down. She was followed half a minute later by Mildred Morgan, Beverly Hills, who started a minute ahead of Miss La Rene.

Ruth Stewart, of St. Louis, swooped down at the airport fifteen minutes later. Ruth Barron, of Hollywood, last to get away from Calexico because of motor trouble, had not landed at 5:15 p. m., nearly two hours and a half after the take-off.

The two had made their way through Guiana and Northern Brazil. Arriving here from Para July 26, on a coastwise steamer, they were arrested on the same day because of a lack of passports.

Tear Bombs Subdue Barricaded Slayer

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP)—Hundreds of passersby on busy West Madison street looked on Monday while a dozen policemen poured pistol ond machine gun fire into a combination restaurant-saloon in a futile effort to rout George Hoffman, a vagrant, who had slain Isaac Protkin, the proprietor, during an argument. Tear bombs finally brought out the slayer.

Witnesses said the men had argued, and Hoffman had shot Protkin through the head. Patrons called police, while Hoffman barricaded himself in a rear room.

Officers were met by shots until the tear bombs subdued Hoffman.

Garfield and Arthur Club: The call for a meeting of the friends of Garfield and Arthur on Saturday night in McConaughy's Hall was promptly responded to. At half past seven o'clock martial music was heard on the streets and at 8 o'clock a number of citizens had assembled at the Hall. Promptly at 8 o'clock the meeting was temporarily organized by electing Col. C. H. Buehler President and J. M. Krauth, Esq., Secretary. On motion of J. A. Kitzmiller, Esq., the following committee was appointed on permanent organization, with directions to report a constitution and by-laws: J. A. Kitzmiller, Carl M. Rupp, J. Wm. Garlach, John S. Sheads and Dr. T. T. Tate. Several campaign songs were sung, and W. H. Bayly, Esq., was appointed chairman of a committee on music, looking to the formation of a glee club.

After the transaction of some routine business, the meeting was addressed by D. A. Buehler, Esq., and Hon. Edward McPherson. Mr. McPherson, fresh from headquarters at Washington, brings encouraging information of the political outlook, and confidently predicts the election of Garfield and Arthur. The attendance was large—the largest club meeting held in Gettysburg for years—and much enthusiasm prevailed. One hundred and five men signed the roll. The club will meet regularly on Thursday night in McConaughy's Hall. The hall will be kept open every night during the campaign.

The Hancock "boom" doesn't seem to turn out satisfactorily in Gettysburg. Last week stirring placards were posted, calling on "Hancock Soldiers" to meet at the Court House on Friday night to organize a "veterans" Campaign Club, closing with an injunction "to charge the enemy and carry the breast-works." As night came on the Democratic drum corps traversed the streets, beating for recruits, but they didn't come. We understand that nine ex-soldiers of Democratic proclivities, with a few lookers on, put in an appearance. It was not deemed prudent to hazard a "charge" with so small a corporal's guard, and the organization of a club was postponed to a more convenient season.

The Sioux.—The "Sioux Fishing Club" returned from their Newport camp on Wednesday night—all delighted with their trip. They speak enthusiastically of the kind reception they met with from the Newport people, and Mr. Zortman, of the "Miller House," particularly. Mr. Z's wife is a daughter of Mr. C. B. Haines, of the "McClellan House" in this place. On Friday evening Mr. Zortman gave the club the compliment of a capital banquet, which was followed by speeches by citizens of Newport and members of the club. The visitors to the camp were numerous, over 300 registering on Sunday afternoon and evening, when the "boys" gave a concert of sacred music, vocal and instrumental. We judge from the complimentary notices in the Newport papers that the boys were on good behavior.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

THE ENTERTAINER

THOSE who give us the most pleasure are all too often passed by. In other words, we take for granted that those who make us laugh—or cry—or who thrills us with their music or speech, are amply taken care of by some big salary, or watched over by an inflated fame.

But the fact is that the most human folks in the world are those who entertain us, who work day in and day out to perfect their art—and largely not for personal gain, or fame at all, but that they may receive the proper recognition for their talents and their ability. To them mere applause must be something more than a perfunctory habit on the part of their hearers, it must come from the heart and mean—appreciation.

Now that the radio has become so universal, we have our unseen entertainers. And yet they are none the less desirous of appreciation, though the front applause may be a thing of the past for them. If they give you pleasure, scattered as you are from them by thousands of miles, in many instances, write to them and tell them of your happiness because of their perfected art. They are none the less human behind the microphone than before the footlights.

Take the clown in the big circus. What a delight to thousands of children, and what a memory to all of us who have outlived those early days. It is proverbial that not many clowns are happy men. Perhaps that is why they take up the business of clowning—as a mask to lives beaten and battered.

If there are any people worthy of their hire, it seems to me that the entertainers come in for a big, full share of its worth.

The entertainers' lives are not even, regular ones. It always takes constant study, constant searching for new ideas, and constant wondering as to what will make their hearers happier and better entertained than before.

Entertainers do not live in the past. They cannot. They must always be uptodate, up to the very minute, for theirs is to make you feel good and comfortable today.

That Night Club phrase comes to me right now—and is pregnant with meaning: "Come now—give the ltle girl a hand!" They all need that hand, however, whenever before you visibly or invisibly. Give them all a hand!

LANDLORD AND TENANT

The landlord wouldn't paint the place
Or keep it in repair,
Yet at the window panes was lace,
Though every board was bare,
And those who passed it by could trace
The tenant's tender care.

And those who passed it by could see
A blossoming plant or two.
Despite the tenant's poverty
A little garden grew,
Lovely and gay and orderly
The blazing summer through.

The landlord life at times seems cold
And deaf to every plea,
Yet to our dreams we still can hold,
Courageous we can be
And 'round the place plant marigold
For passers-by to see.

We, too, with faith, can plant a rose
Where all is bleak and bare
And fashion pretty furbelows
For windows of depair,
And work, till our poor dwelling shows
A tenant's tender care.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

BASEBALL

Just as the Sun was climbing up
Above the eastern wall,
This morning, oh so early,
I heard a robin call.

He hopped upon my windowsill
To sing his morning lay,
And after that he said goodby
And swiftly flew away.

I wish I could remember, too,
what he said about Little Jack Rabbit. The words all rhymed, but, goodness me! I was half asleep and my trusty old alarm clock must have been ashamed to wake me up while the little red-breasted bird was chirping so sweetly. But, just the same, I'll try to remember what my sleepy ears heard as I drowsily gazed at that dear little bird.

Little Jack Rabbit had been chosen captain of the Friendly Forest Baseball Team. Yes, sir, that's what Bobbie Redvest said, and he ought to know, for he had seen the first game with the Nut Town Squirrels. Squirrel Nutcracker's son, Twinkle Tail, was Captain of the Squirrel Nine, and Little Jack Rabbit, Captain of the Friendly Forest Bunny Baseball Team, and the next game between them was to be played on the Sunny Meadow. Of course, all the little people in fur and feather would be there and a great time was to be expected.

Well, sir, when the day came, the grandstand was packed. So packed were all the spectators that it sometimes seemed as if a furry coated person wore a feather tail and a feathered somebody carried a furry tail!

Chatterbox, the red squirrel, who had tried for the captaincy of his team, somehow played a poor game. Maybe he still felt angry that Twinkle Tail had been chosen captain. Well, anyway, with three bunnies on bases, the red squirrel let a ball get past him, and three runs were made all of a sudden, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off your hat. From that time on the bunny team held the lead and finally won the game.

Everybody seemed pleased. Grandmother Magpie clapped her hands till a hole appeared in her black silk mitts. Granddaddy Bullfrog croaked so long and loud that the tears ran down his cheeks. As for happy Uncle Lucky, the old gentleman rabbit, he nearly burst the horn on his little Tin Liz. Maybe he did, for next day he was seen to buy a new one at the Three-in-One Cent Store in Rabbitville.

Yes, it certainly was an exciting game, and after the cheering had died down, Professor Jim Crow solemnly fluttered up to Little Jack Rabbit and pinned a wild rose on his coat. "You're the best little Captain hereabouts," cawed the old black bird, with a flit of his tail.

Of course, all this so pleased Lady Love, the little bunny's mother, that she invited the Bunny Team to supper, and fed them on carrot cake and lettuce marmalade, lollypops and clover tops, pumpkin pie, and honeysuckle sas'prilla.

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE TOYS

By Mary Graham Bonner

The toy shop up in the air was so filled with toys that Peggy and John did not know what to look at first. The man who owned the shop told them that he hoped they wouldn't mind if he took a rest.

They thought it was very nice of him not to watch them and to trust them to be careful with the toys. The Little Black Clock wandered around and looked at some of the things and then he, too, took a rest.

John played with the new airplanes. At first he couldn't understand them at all, but after awhile he began to see how they worked and he flew them about the shop.

Peggy was fascinated with the dolls and the dolls' houses. The dolls were dressed in very lovely clothes, very simple clothes, and in baby clothes, but there were a great many, too, wearing costumes which would be comfortable for flying.

The dolls' houses were much taller than the dolls' houses of Peggy's time. She found most fascinating dirigibles and planets fitted up so dolls could travel in them, with many rooms for the dolls just as there were in the old-fashioned dolls' houses.

She took the dolls out and played with them, giving them names, dressing and undressing them, putting them to bed, and taking them up again.

In spite of all their airplanes and dirigibles and gliders and great tall buildings and air hotels, these dolls were not a bit spoilt by living in such a far-advanced world. They were just as nice and simple and sweet as they could be, and when Peggy talked to them they answered her just as her own dolls had always done.

Of course, she changed her voice to talk for the dolls, but they did not seem to mind that.

In fact they acted as though they liked it.

Stork Two Weeks Behind Schedule

Glamis, Scotland, Aug. 19 (AP)—The good folk of the British Isles have concluded that royal babies are born when they are born and not before. For two weeks they have waited for news that the Duchess of York has presented Britain another heir presumptive to the throne. Despite the waiting, however, there is no anxiety for the duchess—merely a feeling that a miscalculation has been made in time. The birth is expected any day.

Meanwhile, Glamis Castle Monday witnessed the last rites for one of its aged servitors, William Fairweather.

For thirty years Fairweather was head gamekeeper to the Duchess of York's father, the Earl of Strathmore, and the earl was near tears as his old retainer was lowered into a grave on the estate.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNING USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned. That's the time Phillips Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

It relieves the expectant mother's nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps her digestion. Its mild but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding. A teaspoonful of it does the work of a half pint of lime water. It is a mild laxative; harmless, almost tasteless.

All drug stores have Phillips Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

FREE: to young mothers and prospective mothers; "Useful Information," an invaluable little book on the health of mother and child. Write the Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent absolutely free of charge.

One of the last observations of the late Tex Rickard on the subject of heavyweights was a prediction that young W. L. Stribling some day would become the champion of the world.

Shortly afterward, in the first Battle of the Leaning Palms at Miami Beach, Stribling put on an exhibition against Jack Sharkey that fell considerably short of establishing Rickard as prophetic. It has taken nearly two years more, in fact, for Stribling to quit pushing over tank town Joe Palookas.

Young Mr. Stribling has now inserted himself right out in public as the "man to beat" before any heavyweight championship claims are definitely staked. As a matter of fact, Stribling's latest brace of clean-cut performances against Van Porat and Scott, by contrast with the fouls and flops featuring the activties of other heavyweight, gives him a more substantial claim to recognition than either Schmeling or Sharkey.

Negotiations have been afoot for Sharkey or some equally able-bodied pugilist to dispose of the Carnera person, in some such place as Chicago, convenient to a large body of water such as Lake Michigan.

Plans also have proceeded on the theory that Stribling will be the star actor in the next and third Battle of the Leaning Palms next February in Miami.

If possible, the master minds of Madison Square Garden first would like to have Srtibling 'show at his best" in New York. Around the Big Town, the idea has long persisted that Willie the Strib is a "bust." This idea has been based on several very sour exhibitions by the pride of Macon in metropolitan rines.

A convincing display of his recently demonstrated knockout powers, for the benefit of these skeptics, would be expected to stimulate the rush of fistic customers to the vicinity of Miami.

Stribling is entitled to applause from the fistic populace for effectively finishing a job that Sharkey failed to do—the elimination of Phil Scott.

Britons who thought American critics were a trifle harsh on Phil Hitchcock and his fellow Yankee riders fail to repulse the charge of the British light brigade.

The winner of the women's national tennis championship at Forest Hills will be crowned for the first time, since the field contains no previous holder of the title, but the queen of all the courts will continue to be Helen Wills Moody, far from the scene of competition, at her home in Berkeley, California.

So abrupt was Mrs. Moody's decision to remain at home that officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association were left somewhat aghast at the pospective loss of gate receipts at the West Side stadium. The inference was that the champion was not exactly manifesting a proper spirit of gratitude, considering that not so many years ago, she was given all possible aid encouragement and advice in the campaign to establish her as the sucessor of Molla Bjurstedt Mallory.

In the only other year in which California's Helen has failed to defend her American crown, Molla Mallory staged a come-back to win her eighth national title. That was in 1926. Mrs. Moody has captured this title six times, so her decision to withdraw this year makes more difficult the fulfillment of any ambition she may have to surpass Mrs. Mallory's record.

Pro football players, privately and not for publication, never have regarded the celebrated Red Grange as anything like the galloping ghost he seemed to be on the college gridirons. Nevertheless, the redhead will be back this fall for his sixth season under the professional banner. If a summer in Hollywood hasn't softened him up, Granges hopes to go places and do things for the Chicago bears.

University of California's football team, which traveled extensively last year, will play only two games away from home this season.

Michigan has weather records dating to 1863.

DAGGER

By Mary Dahlberg

SYNOPSIS: Dagger Marley, 16-year-old niece of a Texas ranchman, loves Blaine Howard, American adventurer whom she rescues from some Mexican insurgents, but he is killed on the Western Front in France. Then she marries Captain John Vaneering, dashing young ace, but he dies in an airplane accident. She cherishes most the memory of Howard, however. The Duc de Pontoise, French nobleman, falls in love with her in Paris, but she rejects his affection. Dagger decides to travel around the world visiting three friends of Howard to whom he himself once made a pilgrimage in search of an answer to the riddle of life. First she finds Sidi Marut, Arab chieftain, in Africa, who advises her that one should do what he thinks is right. Next she goes to India and gains audience with Ghulam Buk, Buddhist holy man, the second of Howard's friends, in a monastery ordinarily closed to woman.

Chapter 31

"THERE IS NO DEATH"

As the door swung to behind her Dagger caught her breath and snatched a quick survey of the high-roofed chamber—seeking the owner of that silvery voice.

In the farthest corner, a small heap of rugs and garments crowned a low divan. From this heap the voice spoke again:

"You are welcome, my daughter." Dagger was startled. It was almost incredible that life could exist in that shaggy mass; but, peering closer, she perceived a pair of bright, friendly eyes and a small, wizened face.

"Are—are you Ghulam Buk?" she asked.

"Yes. Will you sit?"

A hand that was no more than a claw motioned toward a stool by the divan, and obeying the implied command, she was conscious of a sensation of bewilderment that any creature could give such an impression of extreme age. The man on the divan was shrunken to the dimensions of a child; his very features were in miniature. Perhaps some of her bewilderment was mirrored in her face, for Ghulam Buk chuckled dryly.

"You, my daughter, who have just budded into youth marvel that so ancient a body as this should retain the spark of vitality. Let me call to your attention the saying of Lao Tze, 'The vase molded out of clay would be useless but for the empty space left for its contents; this shows that however beneficial the material may be to us, without the immaterial it would be useless.' My vase, you see, still fulfills a purpose."

Greatly daring, Dagger let her eye meet his.

"I do not know its purpose," she answered, "but to me you seem to give peace."

"If I read your note correctly—" he fingered the envelope she had sent him—"you craved wisdom, not peace."

"Aren't they the same?"

"Yes—and no, child. There is the wisdom of destruction—and in that there is no peace. And there is the wisdom of rightness, which brings to those who follow it the peace that your Christ said 'passeth understanding.'"

"You know Christ?" she asked curiously.

"I know all teachers who have taught the Way."

"And what is the Way?"

"The Path of Righteousness, immolation of self, my daughter, Lao Tze, Confucious, Buddha, Christ, they all and lesser teachers pointed the path I follow. What does it matter how a man is called or the color of his skin, if he says: 'Do this because it is right. Forget Self in the Oneness of all.'"

"Is that what you told Blaine Howard?" Dagger inquired.

"You are not the wife he fled from?"

"No. And yet," Dagger added honestly, "he fled from me."

"A just man. You were fortunate in loving him, my daughter."

"Is it fortunate to love one you never possess?" Dagger demanded somewhat bitterly.

"What is possession? What is love? Is it physical? Is it a thing of clay and passion? Or is it, in its finest essence, the distillation of the hunger of two souls for what is beautiful?"

"But is there no more?" she exclaimed.

"More? There is all!"

"How can there be more for me? How can I have all? He is dead!"

"No, no, my daughter," said Ghulam Buk. "There is no such thing as death. Nothing that is of the spirit dies."

"Is that why I think of Blaine as if he lived?" she asked.

"If you think so, you are in touch with life," he said.

"He cannot be alive," she protested.

"I said you were in touch with life,"—corrected Ghulam Buk. "I did not know, until you told me, that he had suffered the loss of his material clay which holds the immaterial light of the spirit. And if he has suffered that loss, my daughter, perhaps still he will come to you again."

"How could he?"

"Who am I to say what shall and shall not be? You people of the West have plucked the lightning out of the air, and speak words which ride the winds. Would it be more wonderful if those who are materially dead, and immaterially immortal, returned? Your friend, who was my friend, strove to follow the Way. I think that you, too, seek it. That is sufficient."

"Then I do no wrong if I continue to seek after him, if I follow the Way he trod?" Dagger questioned eagerly.

"Wrong? My daughter, you justify him and yourself. In seeking lies happiness."

The bell-like quality of the distant voice fascinated her.

"But he is surely gone from me?" she suggested.

His eyes blazed so that his ancient face was lit up by the flame of his conviction.

"No one is dead, who has sought the Right, who has forgot himself in the Oneness of all. Seek on, my daughter. At the end of seeking lies wisdom, and he who has found the wisdom of rightness has found peace."

Dagger was touched by awe.

"You have found peace—father?" she asked.

His smile acknowledged the title she had given him.

"I have found peace," he assented. "But the seeking was not easy, so be not discouraged if the Way proves stony."

(Copiright, 1930, Duffield and Company)

Into the domains of China's most powerful war lord Dagger goes tomorrow, and strange adventures await her there.

Says Camden Lady In Relating Her Remarkable Experience With This Modern Medicine.

MRS. CARRIE BANKS

"No medicine ever did for me what Konjola did and I cannot say enough in praise of it," said Mrs. Carrie Banks, 1222 Locust street, Camden. "I had a severe case of indigestion. After meals, no matter what I had eaten, I suffered with cramping pains. I lost steadily in strength and energy and it was a task to do my ordinary housework. I tried many medicines but I kept getting worse.

"I read so many encouraging things about Konjola that I decided to put this medicine to the test. In all, I have taken six bottles of Konjola and I can truthfully say that I have not a single trace of my former ailments at this time. Food digests as it should and I am gaining steadily in strength and vitality. I strongly recommend Konjola for anyone suffering as I did."

JOHNSON IS OLD BATTLER

Either In Fight Strong Or Not In It At All.

By Herbert Plummer

Washington—To one who sits on the sidelines in Washington and watches the parade of national figures and the part they play, from day to day, it never fails to be interesting to go back stage from time to time to chat with this or that celebrity on how he looks at the thing.

There is Sen. Hiram Johnson, for example—veteran of so many rough and tumble battles in the senate. Senator Johnson has the reputation when he goes forth to battle he either fights to death or does nothing at all.

I watched him during the memorable fight with Arizona on the Boulder Dam question. I saw him in the fight against ratification of the London naval pact, when as the leader of what he himself recognized a lost cause, lift that fine head of his and shout:

"Lay on, Macduff;

"And damn'd be him that first cries 'Hold, enough!'"

Thrill

One day, not so long ago, while sitting in the vice president's room just off the senate chamber, I asked the veteran California senator what he regarded as the most thrilling battle he had engaged in during his long term as a member of the senate.

In an instant, I had his reply:

"The fight on the League of Nations at the close of Presdent Wilson's administration."

For quite a while he sat there telling incident after incident of that memorable battle in the senate Even at this late date he remembers the detail as vividly as if they just happened. His eyes flashed as he talked.

That famous and only gesture of his, right hand held close to his side with the index finger out just as if he had whipped out a pistol from his pocket, was used more than once as he described various episodes of the fight.

He promised to write for me, when he had the time, some of hs impressions of those days. He says not half of the story has been told.

Same Johnson

The writer was not in Washington then. But a short while after his chat with Senater Johnson, during the time the London naval pact was before the senate, he drifted into the press gallery while Johnson was speaking, just in time to hear:

"The contest in which I am engaged will receive from me the best that is in me. I ask no quarter from any source or under any circumstances. I know no other way to fight when I am fighting for my country, then, if necessary, to die; and, I am willing, sir. . . . . I make no agreement. I stand here upon my rights. . . . Then:

" 'Lay on, Macduff;

" 'And damn'd be him that first cries, 'Hold, enough!' "

It must have been the same Johnson—Johnson, famed of the irreconcilables of the days of 1919.

AMUSEMENTS

At The Majestic

Charles "Buddy" Rogers' musical and theatrical aspirations which started to bud when he was an undergraduate at Kansas university reach full flower in his newest Paramount picture, "Safety in Numbers," showing at the Majestic theatre today.

"Buddy" was the leader of the student orchestra in his undergraduate days. He had a flair for musical expression, and he had the fortitude to make himself learn all he could about every instrument in the band.

As a result he demonstrated his ability as a versatile instrumental performer in "Close Harmony," his first all-talking picture. He played six instruments in the various sequences of that production.

John Barrymore comes to the Majestic theatre Wednesday and Thursday in "The Man from Blankley's," Warner Bros. latest all-talking production.

Mr. Barrymore's early triumphs were in comedy, ranging from the happy-go-lucky type of "The Fortune Hunter" to the delicate whimsicality of "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire." His stage career reached the classic heights of tragedy in "Hamlet."

He easily became the screen's greatest lover and his "Don Juan" was the first picture to include musical synchronization. His initial all-talking triumph was "General Crack."
